Excerpt from The Early Jurisprudence of New Hampshire: An Address Delivered at the Annual Meeting of the N. H. Society, June 13, 1883 History is photography applied to human affairs. Imperfection in material, or lack of care and skill in the artist, may mar or spoil the work. Human bones wired together - the grinning skeleton in some surgical museum - are not the divine creation; but when clothed with flesh and blood, nerve and muscle, and endowed with the spirit which gives action, color, and tone, we recognize the creative individuality, the living man. The cold words of the statutes alone no more constitute the law of the land, than the articulated skeleton the living soul. They must be clothed with the interpretation given by the courts, to which must be added the law of custom, which constitutes four fifths of all the law we have, and which, like the air we breathe, animates and protects us in our homes, in our social gatherings, in our business relations, and in our private life. The spirit which pervades this great body...
