Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Public and Private Life of Gen I Benj; Harrison Let us illustrate: The employes of a certain large establishment, to obtain a redress of grievances, go out upon a strike. Some one of their number proposes and insists on a resort to violence, and advocates the use of the torch. Others oppose such measures. Could it be claimed that those thus opposed were against securing a redress of grievances? In reality, would not such opposition prove them to be the true friend of the cause of labor and of the strike itself? Now let us apply that to the case in question and try Gen. Harrison by that standard. Let him be judged from the record, from what he has said and done, and not by the mere assertions of Democratic newspapers or by interested agitators. Gen. Harrison did oppose the passage of the first bill on the subject, not because he was in favor of Chinese immigration, but for the reason, as stated by him in his speeches in the Senate while it was under discussion, that it was in contravention of existing treaties. He urged that the true way was to seek a modification of the treaty. Another bill was proposed and for the same reasons he voted against it. He was a member of the Committee on Foreign Relations which considered and reported the present law on the subject. He joined in reporting that bill and voted for it. Senator Mitchell, of Oregon, who was deeply interested in procuring the passage of the restrictive act, declared on the floor of the Senate that it was the best bill that had been proposed...
